We do more than supply your project. We help it succeed.

We're flow control experts who put your project first: Self-starters with deep industry knowledge and decades of experience, bringing fresh thinking and new ideas that foster success. It's about thinking for the long term: We deliver solutions that start before ground is broken and continue long after the work is done.

The products you need.
The brands you trust.

We provide access to a full range of well-known, trusted flow control solutions from MPI and our sister McWane companies, all through a single relationship.

Building on a legacy of generations

We're part of McWane, a family-owned company with a proud history going back over 100 years.

The knowledge, experience and project expertise gained over those years have shown us what it takes for our customers to succeed for the long term—the careful planning, open communication, proactive support and deep commitment that are every bit as essential as the products we supply. This is the foundation on which MPI stands, and it's what makes us a supply partner unlike any other.

National reach.
Local knowledge.
A focus on you.

Manufacturing facilities across North America

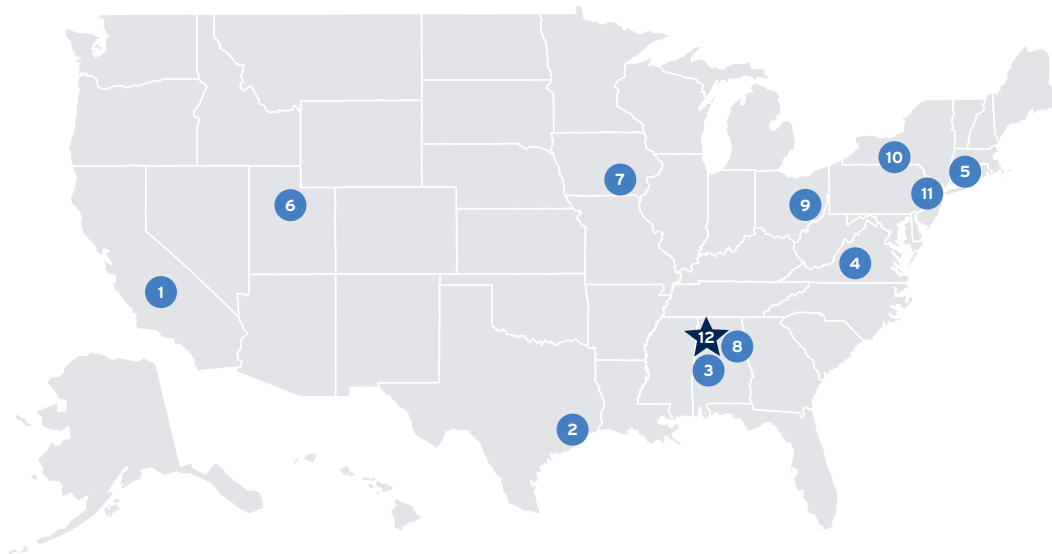

McWane has been dedicated to supplying domestically manufactured products since 1921. With seven foundries, we're able to meet the demands of the market—and we continue to invest in our capabilities.

Dedicated regional support

We think locally, with certified regional support teams that are familiar with all state codes and environmental regulations applicable to their service areas.

Exceptional service

We're leveraging investments in technology and talent to make projects flow as smoothly as possible, from empowering our team to make critical business decisions to implementing tools that simplify design and sourcing.
